ZIG AND ZAG'S COMPLETE GUIDE TO HISTORY

Part the First: EXPLORERS

KEVF

Back in the Middle Ages (that's how old mums & dads are) people in Europe didn't know the rest of the world was there.
They thought if you sailed too far, you'd fall off the edge.
Until THURGUM THURGUMSON, the first explorer, set out to prove them wrong.
And fell off the edge.

Ye Sea

But LIEF ERICKSON tried it, and he didn't fall off.
He discovered an icy place & called it GREENLAND, and a green place which he called ICELAND.
For a joke.
He also landed in AMERICA, but forgot to leave a flag, so no-one believed him.

Mi Bøat

LONG BOAT

THEN in 1492, COLUMBUS sailed the ocean blue.
In 1493, he sailed into a tree.
In 1494, he sailed onto the shore.
In 1495, he sailed up someone's drive.
In 1496, he (GET ON WITH IT — Zag)

MAPPE

While COLUMBUS was doing all this sailing, AMERIGO VESPUCCI made it to AMERICA, which was handy 'cos it had the same name as him so they didn't have to change the roadsigns.

After that, explorers were over there faster than you could say Colonialism.
SIR FRANCIS DRAKE went over and discovered... the DUCK

SPEEDO

SIR WALTER RALEIGH went over & brought back the BMX BIKE.

And the PILGRIM FATHERS sailed from Plymouth, then came back because they'd forgotten the PILGRIM MOTHERS, and all the little PILGRIM KIDS. Also invented the first gardening tool — the PLYMOUTH HOE.

KEEP OUT

GO AWAY

NO-ONE HERE

AFRICA was called the DARK CONTINENT, because the people who lived there kept the lights turned out so they wouldn't be discovered.
When the Europeans finally did get to Africa, they behaved very badly & named lots of places after QUEEN VICTORIA.

INDIA: see above

IN the meantime MARCO POLO went to China and brought back the immortal mint with the hole.

GREAT WALL

TA

and CAPTAIN COOK came across Australia and New Zealand and made lots of food.

The last great explorer was NEIL ARMSTRONG who discovered the moon in 1969 with the famous words: "It's one small step for a man, but it's — AAAARGH! Who moved the flaming ladder!?!"
